'Here, the' concept was to provide a modest extension to the rear which allowed our clients to maintain a reasonable rear garden. The contemporary architectural form was combined with sophisticated materials and a skilful management of the kitchen, dining, living and study areas enabling us to create a series of interrelating dynamic spaces. The result radically transformed the comfort levels in the house while offering significant energy savings as the outmoded heating, mechanical and electrical installations were replaced with modern energy efficient systems. Undoubtedly the work benefited from a delight in materials and finding suitable marriages between form and fabric which while having their own uniqueness still harmonized with the whole and formed a synthesis between the architectural intervention and the interior renovation.'
